SUNSHINE AND SHADOW. BY J. BARRICK. The sunshine has a shadow. And the starlight hath a shade, There's no type in art-like nature,

But an antitype hath made. The sky may be all ozure, With its canony shrene. But a cloud unbidden On the glory of the scene.

The moon may be of silver, And the stars of golden light; But a speck will dim their beauty, In the quiet holy night; And our lives are changing ever; Like the spring-time of the year; Sometimes all is April sunshing. Then again 'tis dark and drear.

We have our dreams of pleasure. And our moments fraught with pain; The day may dawn all lovely, Then put on its gloom again; We have our dreams of rapture-Ours a bliss none else may teel, But the mournful hue of sorrow, O'er the lightest brow will steal.

We have our dreams of gladness --We have waking dreams of care; These hours of kindly greeting, Then again no joys to share. Sometimes life is all a sunshine, Sometimes all a gloomy shade, There's no type in art like nature, But an antitype bath made.

We have thoughts that soar far upwards, In a free-born, glorious air, We have spirits light as fancies. To commune with angels there: Sometimes tales of bitter feeling, O'er the inmost spirit roll, Then again some wave of rupture, Breaks across the shadowed soul.

When the beart is freest, lightest, Like a bird on summer's wing-When the spirit basks in gladness, Then it will with sadness sing; When upon the brow of summer, Angry storms and temposts rise, Then anon unfelds the rainbow, And appear the smiling skies.

WOMAN'S LOVE-A CHARMING STORY.

Oue of the editors of the New Or-leans Picayune, in a recent article on the above business, persons may rely on havthe moral culture of the offections, relates the following pretty story:

"In the course of our peregrinations. we were once introduced to a family consisting of a widow lady and two daughters. The elder was about 20, an exceedingly interesting girl, well educated and of considerable personal attractions. In the general demeanor of the eister there was a striking contrast; the youngest was all gaiety, with a transparent candor on her features that enabled you to read her very heart. Every word, every move of the elder, evinced some predominant idea-that she habichewed the bud of bitter melancholly." What that idea was, in a young girl, of course every body might divine. After a time, a little intimacy having sprung up, between us and the widow, the cause of the melancholly in her eldest daughter was explained to us.—

St. Louis, Aug. 30, 1849—26- tf. She had been brought up near a family where there was a youth of her own age, and a reciprocal affection was the result of long years of intimacy between sorted stock of boots and shoes we have ever them. The mother only became aware seen above St Louis-of choice material and them. The mother only became aware seen above St Louis-of choice material and of the state of her daughter's feelings workmanship-exactly suited to this market following all sizes and fishing all sizes and sizes all sizes and sizes all sizes are sizes at the sizes and sizes all sizes a by the demand for her hand made by the lover. The position of the young couple was such, in regard to worldly offairs, as to render their marriage imprudent in the extreme. The widow, therefore, pointed out to her child all the evil consequences which it would dren's boots shoes and guiters entail on her, and the latter, like a sensible young woman, concurred in the mother's views. It was then agreed on between them to remove from the scene of danger, and the family accordingly established themselves at a spot forty miles off, where we first saw them,

Circumstances shortly after called us to another part of the country, but about nine months subsequently we were again thrown into intercourse with the family at the same place-Somewhat to our surprise, we found the widow with the youngest daughter only, the elder had left her home for ever. The explanation was very readily given to us.

It appeared, that notwithstanding every effort on the part of the young lady, the passion she had conceived for the companion of her infancy could not he eradicated. Her gloom and despondency daily, hourly increased. She uttered no complaint, but it was plain that memory, 'like a worm in the bud.' preyed on her young heart. Riding one evening in a carriage with her mother in the outskirts of the village party dresses where they lived, whilst the latter was endeavoring to rouse her from her melancholly, by descanting on the beauties of nature, she suddenly broke forth from her torper and exclaimed-

"Look, ma, at yonder oak, alone in the middle of that ploughed field! 1 would rather be Morion's wife, and live upon acorns beneath that tree, than be the bride of a prince!" Struck almost speechless by her daughter's unaccustomed energy, the poor widow looked at her a moment. and burst into tears.

"Do you really mean that Hetty?" and will keep a supply during the season Then, as there is a living God, you shall have him. I am too much of a woman not to understand you, and will no longer oppose your wishes.

The two were in an instant locked love and gratitude. They returned thome instantly; a letter was addressed Has; Mexican and wood hats, which I offer in each other's arms, weeping tears of to the lover, and the wedding of the for sale very low young couple was duly solemnized with n a month from that day."

AVING determined to change my busito the cash system, I have greatly reduced the price of most articles, and invite my friends and the public to examine my stock and prices, assuring them that they will find goods tery cheap. "A quick sixpence is better than a slow shilling." Believing this mainly to be true, and that the interest of both purchaser and seller is promoted by small profits and prompt payment, I have concluded to try the system for the present year, I take pleasure in acknowledging my obligations for the very liberal patronage they have so generously be-stowed upon me during my residence in this place, and earnestly solicit a continuance of that support. I have on hand a large stock of DRY GOODS,

Its incredible cures have astonished thouands who have witnessed its power over that isease. Unfortunate, despairing invalids, who ave been bed-ridden for years, have been re tored to the enjoyment of perfect health. It anishes all pain in a few days, and its efficacy gladly realized by the patients being able to esume their usual avocations, after having suffered in torments for months and years. --The wonderful success of the EMBROCA-FION, in curing the worst cases of Kheunatism, has acquired for it a celebrity unprecedented, and its fame originated from Rhoumatism, either inflammatory or chronic; and I feel safe in saying it never will if fairly tried. I pledge myself to refund the cash to any person who uses it properly without being benefitted thereby. Youwho are afflicted may have tried every other remedy but this.
